It's another great day to be great.

This report covers outreach activity for the first half of April 2026 across LinkedIn and email. Both channels remained active throughout the period. The LinkedIn Connector campaigns launched in February are now approaching full saturation, and the email channel continued scaling new contact volume while managing follow-up sequences across the existing pipeline.

APRIL AT A GLANCE

1,993	548	27.5%	99	8,800	87
LinkedIn Contacted	Connections Built	Acceptance Rate	LinkedIn Replies	Emails Sent	Email Replies

LINKEDIN

Both LinkedIn Connector campaigns activated on February 9 are now past 97% contact saturation. Combined, the two profiles have built 548 connections from 1,993 contacts reached, maintaining a strong 27.5% acceptance rate across the program.

Acceptance Rate	27.5%	combined across both profiles (548 of 1,993 contacted)
Total Replies	99	across both profiles since campaign launch
Positive Sentiment	31.3%	31 of 99 replies flagged as positive engagement
Campaign Saturation	97.4%	less than 3% of loaded prospects remain uncontacted

Profile Comparison

PROFILE	CONTACTED	CONNECTED	RATE	REPLIES	POSITIVE
Kristina Muxo	996	318	31.93%	59	19
John Noble	997	230	23.07%	40	12

Kristina Muxo continues to outperform on connection acceptance, holding 31.93% versus John Noble's 23.07%, a gap of nearly nine percentage points. This pattern has held consistently since launch, confirming that sender positioning remains a material driver of engagement quality. Both campaigns are now effectively exhausted, with 97%+ of loaded prospects contacted. Fresh prospect lists are needed to sustain LinkedIn activity at current volume.

EMAIL

The email channel sent 8,800 messages in the first half of April, reaching 4,949 new contacts for the first time and delivering 3,871 follow-up touches to existing prospects.

Total Sent	8,800	4,949 new contacts + 3,871 follow-up emails
New Contacts	4,949	prospects contacted for the first time this period
Follow-ups	3,871	44% of send volume consumed by sequence follow-ups
Replies	87	leads who responded to outreach
Meetings Booked	0	no confirmed meetings during this period

WHY NEW CONTACT VELOCITY HAS SLOWED

The active email sequences contain up to eight steps per prospect. As the pipeline matures, follow-up emails accumulate and consume a growing share of daily sending limits. In this period, 44% of all sends (3,871 of 8,800) were follow-ups rather than first-touch outreach. This is expected behavior for multi-step sequences and reflects a pipeline that is deepening engagement with existing contacts while naturally throttling the rate at which new prospects enter the funnel.

The 87 replies represent active engagement across the pipeline, but none have converted to booked meetings during this period. Converting these conversations into confirmed calendar invites is the immediate priority for the second half of April. Reply handling speed and follow-up quality on responsive leads will be the primary levers for driving that conversion.

PRIORITIES FOR THE SECOND HALF OF APRIL

Three priorities for the second half of April: convert existing replies into meetings, reload the LinkedIn pipeline, and optimize email send allocation.

LinkedIn: Both Connector campaigns are effectively complete at 97%+ saturation. The next step is loading fresh prospect lists into both profiles to maintain connection volume. Kristina Muxo's consistently higher acceptance rate suggests prioritizing her profile for any high-value segments.

Email: The follow-up load will continue to grow as more prospects move through the eight-step sequences. To protect new-contact velocity, send scheduling may need to be rebalanced, either by increasing daily limits where deliverability allows or by trimming lower-performing sequence steps. The 87 replies generated this period represent the immediate conversion opportunity. Prioritizing direct engagement with responsive leads is the fastest path to booked meetings.

BOTTOM LINE

LINKEDIN	1,993 contacted · 548 connected 27.5% · 99 replies · campaigns at 97% saturation
EMAIL	8,800 sent · 4,949 new contacts · 87 replies · 44% of volume is follow-ups

The pipeline is generating engagement. The next step is conversion.
